R. O. T. C. BREAKS CAMP

The Phillips Academy Military Camp Completed its Intensive Training Course Last Wednesday After Six Weeks of Good Work.

The Phillips Academy R. O. T. C. broke camp Wednesday at 1 p. m., after six weeks of intensive training. The management of the camp has been in charge of Major Robert N. Davy, Lieut. Wyatt, Captain P. S. Page and Captain Guthe. The weather has been unfavorable for a continuous and daily routine, yet much has been accomplished in the way of securing a knowledge of military drill and tactics. The drill has been intensive, and the discipline strict and experience of army camp life has been gained by the cadets.

The last days of the camp have been strenuous as examinations were given to test the actual knowledge gained from the lectures and drill. The subjects covered by the examinations were: Drill (Close and Extended Order and Trench Warfare) Bayonet Fighting, Bombing, Map Reading and Topography, Signaling, Ability to Command and Conduct. The certificates given were neat in form and signed by Principal A. E. Stearns and Major Robert N. Davy, and the ratings of Excellent,

Good, Fair and Poor were granted according to answers to the questions assigned.

The social side of the camp life was not neglected as on Friday evening of last week a successful military ball was held in the Borden Gymnasium.

The gymnasium was prettily and simply decorated with American flags and flags of the allies. The members of the R. O. T. C. wore the regulation uniform.

Lowe's orchestra of Boston furnished excellent music for the dancing. The ball began at nine and was continued until one a. m., with an intermission at midnight for refreshments served by James Ryley of the dining hall.

The following attended: Major Robert N. Davy and Mrs. Davy, Lieut. Col. Roberson, Miss Taylor, Captain Newbold, Miss Mary Watson, Captain Dole, Miss Gwendolyn Brooks, Captain Whipp, Miss Sonja Borg, Captain G. Houk, Miss Katherine Pinckney, Cap-

Keep the Home Fires Burning!

Let the children play with matches. Permit the cook to start the fire with kerosene. Burn trash in the back yard, especially on windy days. Let soot accumulate in the chimneys. Set the stoves too close to the woodwork. There are many other ways in which we can continue to burn our homes, but for further data on the subject apply to the chief of the fire department.

DEMONSTRATION CAR

A Wheatless Food Demonstration Electric Car Will be at Elm Square To-morrow from 10.30 A. M. to 12.30 P. M. The Public is Invited.

The special electric car of the U. S. Food Administration and the state Department of Health which has been touring Massachusetts since the first of July, is scheduled to draw up in Elm Square, to-morrow, and to be open to free public inspection from 10.30 a. m. to 12.30 p. m. The car carries a complete equipment for cooking, and, both inside and out, it displays interesting posters and banners that set forth briefly the main points in the campaign to save wheat for the soldiers and to save babies and give the little ones the foundation of health which efficient citizenship demands.

In the vestibules and throughout the car there are food and baby welfare exhibits. As the visitors gather demonstrations take place. Visitors are encouraged to ask questions and to make use of the many recipe books and leaflets available for distribution. Cooking troubles with substitute cereals and food for the baby in hot weather are the topics upon which most questions are asked. In a single day 800 women have studied this interesting travelling exhibit everywhere it has been received with a most enthusiastic welcome.

Miss Caroline Putnam Webber, prominently identified with the Liberty bread demonstrations of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, is in active charge. Young ladies from Simmons College and the Garland School assist her. Miss Genevieve R. Jules, a registered nurse, has been assigned to the car by the Division of Hygiene of the State Department of Health to direct the baby welfare work. She is well-qualified by training and experience.

This wheatless food demonstration electric car has been drawing thousands in each community visited and the daily lessons on wheatless dishes, the display of the fireless cooker and iceless box have been of great interest. Experts in food conservation are prepared to answer any questions asked by housekeepers and the latest rulings and ideas of the Food Administration will be introduced.

The care and feeding of little children will be another feature of this car, and a trained nurse will be in daily attendance to help mothers in their individual problems. Careful instruction upon the children's diet in war time will be one of the special details.

This splendid place of taking food and child welfare lectures, recipes and literature to the busy mothers who can not leave home to visit city centres has been put into operation by the Massachusetts Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Chairman, through the generous financial backing of Mrs. A. Lawrence Hopkins of Boston. Miss S. Agnes Donham, chairman of the home economics department, State Federation of Women's Clubs, originated the travelling car plan and the idea was immediately accepted by the Council. Miss Donham is in charge of the project and directs all operating details. The actual food demonstrations and lectures are given by Miss Carolyn P. Webber, also of the Federation home economics department, assisted by two pupils of the Garland School of Homemaking.

The car itself decked with national, state and food conservation flags and with huge posters, will attract immediate attention wherever it goes, as it has already done during its four days' stay in Post Office Square, Boston. Of the observation type the car with its large platforms and broad windows and movable seats is admirably adapted for the purpose. One platform is fitted up with kerosene stove and large mixing table where wheatless foods will be prepared while you wait. Inside the car are food exhibits, notable among them being the "Corn Federacy—Home Guard," suggesting the use of corn at home that wheat may be sent abroad.

Such legends as "Food Will Win the War," "Cut Out the Eat From Wheat and Meat," and "Toot the Toot in Substitute," "Keep the Babies Clean, Cool and Contented," "Keep the Babies Milk Clean, Good, and Covered," are plastered all over the outside so that he who runs may read.

It is their purpose to show the preparation and general use of wheat substitutes, to answer all questions in regard to War-time cookery, and to be of general assistance in the distribution of receipts and literature.

The car is now making a specialty of receipts without sugar.

The Famous 42-Centimeter Gun

One of the early surprises of the war was the huge gun used by the Germans to destroy the powerful Belgian forts. Properly speaking, these were not guns, but howitzers; and right here we must learn the difference between mortars, howitzers and guns. What we usually mean by gun is a piece of long caliber which is designed to hurl its shell with a flat trajectory. But long ago it was found advantageous to throw a projectile not at, but upon, a fortification, and for this purpose short pieces of large bore were built. These would fire at a high angle, so that the projectile would fall almost vertically on the target. The bore of a gun is rifled; that is, it is provided with spiral grooves that will set the shell spinning, so as to keep its nose pointing in the direction of its flight. Were it not for this spin, the shell would tumble over and over and not go very far. The mortars, on the other hand, were originally intended for short-range firing, and their bore was not rifled. In recent years, however, mortars have been made longer and with rifled bores, so as to increase their range, and such long mortars are called howitzers. The German 42-centimeter howitzer fires a shell that is 2,108 pounds in weight and is about 14 yards long. The diameter of the shell is 42 centimeters, which is about 16 inches. It carries an enormous amount of high explosive, which is designed to go off after the shell has penetrated its target. The marvel of this howitzer was not that it could fire so big a shell, but that so large a piece of artillery could be transported over the highroads and be set for use in battle. Of course, we do not know the details of this howitzer yet, but it is generally believed that the Belgian forts were reduced by the Austrian "Skoda" howitzers, which fire a shell of 30.5 centimeters (12-inch) caliber, and not by the 42 centimeter gun. This howitzer can be taken apart and transported by three motor cars of one hundred horsepower each. The cars travel at a rate of about twelve miles per hour. It is claimed that the gun can be put together in twenty-four minutes, and it will fire at the rate of one shot per minute.—A Russell Bond in the July St. Nicholas.

From one end of the land to the other such stories as these are coming to the United States Department of Agriculture—stories of the determination which in every part of the Nation inspires the people to get out in the fields and work and in every possible way to do whatever will help, however indirectly to the winning of the war.—Weekly News Letter.

Twilight Labor Squads Help in the Harvest of Farm Crops in Illinois

The city firemen of Springfield, Ill., have unanimously volunteered for farm work, each agreeing to spend his two weeks' vacation working on farms in the county where he may be needed. In Springfield, as throughout Illinois, Missouri, and, indeed, almost every State of the Union, there is an enthusiastic response to the United States Department of Agriculture's program of town volunteers for emergency farm work. Reports reaching the department recently from a number of towns in Missouri and Illinois show that many of the town volunteers turn their wages over to the Red Cross. All over the Middle West the wheat harvest is being handled, the crops are being saved, and very largely in each section, by the patriotic town and city people who are turning out to the fields to do this war work.

In one Illinois county "twilight labor squads" of town volunteers have been organized. All the town men who can possibly do so are going to the fields for full-day work. In addition each town has organized the "twilight squads" composed of men who must be in town most of the day. These squads leave town in automobiles during the afternoon and get to the fields in time for several hours of daylight work, and perhaps several hours more of moonlight work. The "twilight squads" have been used altogether for shocking the cut wheat, and the personnel is so adjusted that each squad contains at least two and sometimes more men who know how to shock. These outfits operate within a radius of ten or fifteen miles from the town.

At Petersburg, Ill., the city marshal happens to be an expert machine man. Furthermore, he is a peace officer of vision. He wants to help keep law in all the world, not merely in Petersburg, Ill., so, with the mayor's permission, he has been spending each afternoon going over the county and examining the farmers' machinery and seeing that repairs and adjustments are made if needed. During the cutting season the city placed an automobile at his disposal, and he spent his entire time repairing binders for the farmers.

LETTER FROM CAMP DEVENS

Thaxter Eaton Tells Us More of the Interesting Things in the Life of the Soldier at Ayer

August 9, 1918

Editor of Townsman:

Dear Sir:—In almost endless procession for ten days, fifteen thousand recruits had been passing through Building 4003, when, last Friday, the small army of medical department men and clerks who had helped the forty doctors examine them, lined up in their turn on the screened piazza to receive their reward in the shape of sixty hour passes. Thanks to the cent-a-mile transportation many of them were able to visit distant homes and forget for the moment, the busy scenes at Camp Devens. From all over New England this July draft had come to hasten the day of victory and we greeted them as cordially as we could and at the same time decide, at the rate of sixteen hundred a day, whether they were "physically qualified" or "deficient". The weather conspired to make their reception a warm one and the good temper they exhibited after being hustled hither and thither or waiting in line with no "forty inch between ranks" until the various doctors had looked them all over, was really remarkable.

I was lucky in being located just outside the exit and many were the sighs of relief I heard as the half-clad soldiers elect, waving their shirts or their straw hats in varying stages of demolition, rushed out into the open air. "Do I stop here? Where do we get the needle? Can we smoke here, Jack? Have I passed? Where do we go from here?" were some of the queries, as they paused for a moment, while we checked up their papers to see that they had eluded none of the doctors in their journey through the labyrinth inside. "You're through the mill", or "Keep on going to the building on your right" or "You're elected", "You're a husky looking fellow; would you be willing to volunteer to go to France next week?" and if the man was an Irishman from Boston he would almost invariably reply, "sure, they can't sail too soon to suit me" or words to that effect. Sometimes a man would come rushing by without seeing us, whereupon we would grasp him by the wrist and whirl him around or call after him, "Here, just a minute, Buddy—so you're in a hurry to get to France—well, I don't see but what you're all right—just go down to the end of the pier (a covered plank walk extended one-hundred yards, to the next building) and take the boat!" Perhaps the neuropsychiatric stamp would be missing and the man would have to be taken back to have his knees tapped and sundry questions asked, or the cardio-vascular board would have to be consulted, or a visit paid to the Head Surgery building to see if glasses would correct a man's eyesight. One day an excited Italian was tearing around trying to locate his eighty-eight card he needed before getting his finger prints taken. He was almost crying and you would have thought the loss of it was a court martial offence. It didn't take many minutes to find the card for him and relieve his mind of a great load. Another little fellow-countryman of his who fell short of the requisite one hundred and ten pounds was most anxious to be accepted and as a barber could probably have made himself useful. We arranged to have his case reopened but when he told the colonel he wanted some light work, that settled matters. None of the men with operable conditions were taken, as heretofore, for the camp has more D. S. O. men than it can handle.

Three development battalions have been formed and many of the men built up and transferred back to the Division, but, however good it may be for the man it is considerable of an experiment for the government and rather expensive business in war times. These initials, I should have explained, do not stand for Distinguished Service Order, as in England, but for Domestic Service Only! Judging from the number of rejections, some of the local boards must have examined their men rather superficially and somewhat caustic letters were sent them for wasting Uncle Sam's time and money. For cursory examinations, however, this one, as reported to me by a Florida dandy, took the prize. "How much do you weigh?" "One hundred and seventy pounds." "You're all right, go on." Of the total number of selected men about 13% had to be replaced by others. For the most part the stream of men flowed on to the Personnel Building, where they received their "jabs", were questioned as to their qualifications for any particular branch of the service and had an opportunity to take out ten thousand dollars worth of insurance, which the great majority of them embraced—all the more readily as the expense is but a third of what it would be if the government were not issuing the policies.

The railings just beyond our table were often lined with "non-coms" of the different companies, who would be on the lookout for their men to direct them where to go next. "Sixty-third company? Fall out under the trees across the road and don't eat too many green apples!" The scene reminded me of a railway station at traintime with all the hotel porters shouting, only in this case, the non-coms were more apt to disburse money than receive it, for many of the rookies had entrusted rolls of bills to them for safe keeping while they were separated from their clothes. In all probability most of them will not need a banker again for some time, for after allotting fifteen dollars a month to one's family, and paying nearly half as much for insurance, the average man does not have a great deal left, particularly if he patronizes the canteen at all frequently. And the one hundred and five thousand dollars worth of business done by one post exchange in one month recently, speaks for their popularity. As Fred B. Smith, a well known Y. M. C. A. man, remarked in the course of a stirring address last week in our natural amphitheatre (which the typesetter made to read nautical!) the three distinguishing marks of a soldier are that he is all ways "broke", always hungry, and always wished he were somewhere else then where he happens to be!

Sometimes there would join the groups on the railing a fourteen year old "teanster" who said he earned four dollars and twelve cents per day! In addition he seemed to find time to eke out his slender (I) income by bringing over bottles of tonic from the nearby canteen to the thirsty men.

This past week a dusky host descended upon us but brought anything but gloom in their train. The twelve hundred colored men from New England seemed to measure up well with the whites, but, as three times that number of their Florida brethren shuffled by, one wondered if they could ever be taught to march "one hundred and twenty steps to the minute". It was the first trip north for most of them and they were finding the midsummer nights rather chilly! The majority appeared somewhat dazed and but little acquainted with the "three R's" and their non-coms said they were as apt to turn one way as another when given the command "Right face" and couldn't always be found except at meal time! But an earlier quota from the South made a creditable showing as they left camp recently after three months drilling and the change of environment and life may be counted on to work wonders with these men too. The possibilities were exemplified by one recruit who looked every inch a soldier in his uniform as a second lieutenant in the Tuskegee Battalion. But over against him had to be placed a professional snake charmer and others of very limited intelligence in addition to many who were physically below par, but kept for non-combatant service. One corporal made me laugh who was in charge of several men who had evidently been classified as morons. He confused the word with the color of the medical department and said that he had brought up half a dozen maroon.

Possibly I shouldn't refer to these latest arrivals as backward for they apparently believe in simplified spelling as witness the names "Seaser" and "Sippio" which came to my attention. And so, as the days pass, all sorts of civilians become soldiers and while preparing to do their part in the overthrow of autocracy, by living together on terms of absolute equality, learn anew the real meaning of democracy. Very sincerely
Thaxter Eaton

Hay Caps Return Their Coat In Bettering Crop's Value

Hay caps—covers used in curing hay in cocks—give protection from rain, reduce the loss of leaves, improve the color and increase the feeding value of the hay, according to Farmers' Bulletin 977, recently published by the United States Department of Agriculture.

One of the strongest recommendations for the use of hay caps is the fact that hay growers east of the Mississippi River who have used them are nearly always very enthusiastic regarding their advantages. The chief reason that hay caps are not used more extensively, both North and South, according to the bulletin, is that most hay growers are of the opinion that they cost too much to warrant their use. In many sections, the bulletin adds, the reduction in the value of hay through discoloration by sun and rain in a normal season amounts to as much as, or perhaps more than, the cost of enough hay caps to prevent this loss.

Hay caps are of two distinct types—those that are entirely impervious to both air and rain, and those that shed nearly all of the rain and at the same time allow most of the moisture-laden air from the interior of the stack to pass through and be carried away. The caps are fastened to each corner of the cap by heavy wire pins run through eyelets in each corner of the cap and into the hay, or by the use of strings tied to each corner of the cap and fastened together near the ground on opposite sides of the cock. Caps should be put in place as soon as the cock is made, but when there is no indication of rain this may be delayed until the following forenoon. When the caps are not in use they should be dried thoroughly and stored. If properly cared for they will last several seasons, and can be used on three or four cuttings each season.

At the New Jersey Experiment Station it was found that when some cocks of alfalfa were covered with cotton sheeting caps 45 inches square and exposed to a heavy rain lasting 24 hours the hay was damp only 2 or 3 inches below the top. The cocks that were not covered received a thorough wetting, and the hay was more or less bleached, the stems brittle, and the loss of leaves heavy.

Hay caps are especially valuable in curing alfalfa and clover hay, which do not dry out as readily as the grasses. Alfalfa hay must be handled carefully to avoid loss of leaves, which constitute from 40 to 60 per cent of its weight, according to the bulletin. Farmers making a specialty of producing choice hay for market, or feeders, such as dairymen, desiring good palatable hay free from dust will find that under certain conditions, it will pay well to cure hay in cocks, under hay caps, when ordinary methods have been found to be unsatisfactory.

Snapshots for our Soldiers

A piece of paper covered with black and white spots—nothing more. But suppose those spots have been painted by sunlight through a camera lens, and form a picture of a homestead, a familiar street, or a mother's snowy hair, and face lined with the eloquent handwriting of the years—what would a soldier rather have from home than such souvenirs?

A snapshot of the house and barn; of the family sitting on the front steps; of father spading up the garden; of the old horse rubbing his nose along the pasture gate; of the dog wagging expectancy at the kitchen door; of the baby sprawling in the sand-pile, or the older children squinting at the camera with the sun in their eyes—these are the scraps of paper which defy time and distance. They assure men amid scenes of violence and death that the peaceful sweet life, they have left behind in order to defend still exists.

Now that the sweaters, stockings, wristlets, helmets, jam, tobacco, chocolate—and other creature comforts have been sent off, and brains are being cudgeled for something else to send the boys at the front, do not disdain the humble snapshot—the amateur photograph that anyone can take by pressing a spring; the little peep of home faces and home scenes that can be sent far overseas and taken out of a pocket at odd moments—who knows at how odd moments?—for a renewal of faith and hope and memories of home.

Timothy McCarthy, overseer of the Hackle Machine department at the Flax Mill, has returned to work after enjoying his annual vacation.

After considerable trouble the inhabitants of a certain small village were given a post office. At first their pride in the acquisition was unbounded. Then complaints began to come in that letters were not being sent off properly. The Post Office Department accordingly ordered an inspector to look into the matter. "What becomes of the letters posted here?" he asked the postmaster, who was also the grocer. "The people say that they are not sent off."

"Course they ain't!" snorted the old man angrily as he pointed to a large and nearly empty bag hanging in a mail corner. "I haven't sent it off because it ain't anywheres near full yet!"

Correct Her Unpardonable Fault
of Wastefulness and Extravagance."

THE COLLECTION of telephone bills that remain unpaid after the reasonable specified date is—

WASTEFUL—Because it consumes in work that should be unnecessary, time, effort and expense that might be better devoted to the enormous amount of necessary work that war time conditions demand.

EXTRAVAGANT—Because it lavishes upon work that should be unnecessary, the time, the effort, the expense, that might otherwise be concentrated on the important business of keeping the nation's war-time telephone service up to peace-time standards.

TELEPHONE SUBSCRIBERS can make a large part of this collection work unnecessary, just by paying their telephone bills within a reasonable time.

The time has come for us to decide whether we are to be a part of the war, or merely on-lookers.
This is OUR war. We should ALL be in it. If we cannot go to the trenches, we can serve at home.

The man, woman or child who is not a part of the war, in the face of the sacrifices of our boys over there, has no right to enjoy the sacred privileges of America!—no right to call himself an American! He is an alien, if not in name, at least in spirit.

The money which you invest in War-Savings Stamps buys food and supplies for our boys over there, as well as ammunition. The money that you put into War-Savings Stamps represents that much labor, food and supplies, not used by us, but instead turned over to the Army and Navy. Will you agree to save part of YOURS for your country?

TRADE AT HOME

Why did that little country town up the back hills go to seed? Once it had a village blacksmith, a corner grocery, a postoffice, a church, a grist mill, and—A COMMUNITY INTEREST. It lost the last great asset first and then the other things that made a real village rapidly followed.

Bay State Street Railway

"The gross receipts of the Bay State Street Railway Company in July showed a decrease compared with the same month a year ago of $36,600, or 6 per cent."

The above is a clipping from the financial column of the Boston Herald one day this week, and tells a story, volumes in significance if only a few lines in length.

The writer has referred several times in this column to a situation likely to develop exactly as shown in the above official report. He had never believed that it would be quite so bad and even now it is not a complete statement. If it were a complete statement, it would also show the increased cost of operation associated with this decreased gross receipts, and if the public is disturbed by the decreased receipts it would be doubly so when the two statements were put together.

Again we commend to those in charge of the improved service in the Bay State Street Railway Company, their consideration of the theory that like cooking rabbits, the first thing to do is to "catch the rabbit". So in having people ride, the first thing to do is to get the passenger on the street car. The popular car will bring him there and hold him if he is a short distance rider. It won't discourage him from paying his zone fare if he is a long distance rider, nearly so much if the original price of admission is the popular coin of a nickel. Mr. Man, you who run the Bay State Railway, think this over!

A Fine Success

The closing of the Phillips Academy military camp will bring mingled feelings to many Andover people. To those who have had to sacrifice considerable to their patriotic zeal in the wakeful nights that some of the camp activities have produced in the vicinity of Andover hill, there will not be any great regret that trench fights are no longer in vogue in that section. While there has been a little objection (and very properly so) to this sort of thing, all in all the people up there have taken the thing in the very best spirit of hearty co-operation, and of enthusiastic approval of the efforts of the camp.

The public at large, and this means many outside of Andover who have ridden through and seen the new military atmosphere around the Hill, have had a deal of satisfaction in this summer institution. They will miss the field of tents, the martial music, the parade ground and several hundred boys on it, all fixed in the wonderful setting of the Phillips campus, not excelled for such a setting by any other section of the country.

Those who have known the camp more intimately will join with the writer in expressing high approval of the wonderful training that has come to those boys, of the military progress that has been made under Major Davy, Lieutenant Wyatt, and their junior officers, all working out in a rare way a successful camp for the first of the sort in preparatory schools. The health of the boys has been excellent, and here Captain Page may well take pride.

The whole affair has had the wise guidance of Principal Stearns who without any military fuss and feathers has applied to this problem as he does to all of the problems coming before him, good sense and clear judgment. It isn't necessary that any of us should know even if we wanted to, whether it has been a profitable affair in dollars and cents, or a profitless affair. It isn't necessary that we should know how many of these boys are destined to become military men; it isn't necessary that we should know how all these tests apply, for all of us to appreciate that in this military atmosphere in which the world finds itself, Phillips Academy has been a big, all around full-bodied participant through the camp held in Andover this summer.

Editorial Cinders

There isn't much interest in local politics; all there is seems to relate to the senatorial contest in which Representative Gleason finds himself opposed by Senator Tetter, and where the representative contest is confined entirely to two candidates from North Andover. Senator Tetter is undoubtedly a candidate in response to a very strong call from the senatorial district, a situation which doesn't promise well for Mr. Gleason's ambitions, but to be solved only by a test at the polls in the coming primary.

For representative, Peter Holt is again an aspirant from North Andover and his opponent is a young man by the name of Robertson who makes his first entry into politics. Totally untried, with nothing whatsoever for public life, he is the type that too frequently becomes a formidable candidate, for while he may not have any friends who know about his positive virtues, he has no enemies who emphasize his negative qualities. There is a strong feeling in Andover that Mr. Holt is worthy of a second term, and that feeling is likely to give him a generous support. Mr. Holt has qualities that have given him a strong hold on the people of North Andover and this neighborly feeling will undoubtedly be shared by many Andover voters.

The Food Demonstration car to come to Andover tomorrow will probably attract considerable attention and de a matter of interest to a considerable number of people. Beyond that, its very best service will be in the aroused interest it will create in the real problem itself of securing more value from our war gardens and saving in the use of these food essentials to a greater extent. A lot of wasted effort is traveling around the country, some of it on wheels, and some of it through wheels, but we are inclined to think that our war demonstration car will do more good than many of them, and deserves the encouragement of a generous interest on the part of Andover people. It certainly does if it will make any appreciable number of them more saving, and more helpful to each other in saving.

Again we record some good things in connection with the activity of the Constitutional Convention, one of the best of the week being the passing to engrossment of the proposition for biennial elections for state officers. Many of us might wish that these elections might be held once a decade, but in line with every state in the Union, in line with the very best possible judgment that can be passed by all of the statutes on the question, it would seem as if this is a wise proposal for the people to pass upon.

"Gompers Disapproves"—we might well have the newspaper head writer who wrote that head in connection with the story of certain legislation at Washington go still further and insist that because "Gompers disapproves" the proposed legislation will not go through.

War Work for Women

The Government has requested many of the rubber manufacturers of the country to equip certain departments of their plants for the manufacture of the rubber parts used on their gas masks. This is considered the most important article in a soldier's equipment, next to his rifle. Necessarily, much of this work must be done by women.

We believe there are many women in Andover and vicinity who would be interested to help in this work, as a patriotic duty. In some parts of our country, owing to the scarcity of men workers, many women have fitted themselves to become skilled workers in this line and are daily helping to win the war and save our boys from the horrors of gas shells.

The Tyer Rubber Company would like the names of all women in Andover who are willing to enroll as possible workers. Good wages are assured. Those interested should call at the Tyer Rubber Company or telephone 370 and Mr. Gillespie will give full particulars.

Local Men for Camp Jackson

The following Andover men are in the list for Roll call at Camp Jackson, Columbia, S. C., August 24th. Enrollment on a date to be announced later.

Wm. G. McDermitt, 12 Bartlett street; Michael P. J. Byrne, 29 Essex street; Lyman F. Cheever, 63 Chestnut street; Walter Robert York, Ballardvale and Harold Frances Wells, alternate, Ballardvale.

For Special Service

George Walsh of Brook street and F. B. Davies of Ballardvale, have been called for special service in Division 21, and reported yesterday. George Walsh went to the Wentworth Institute, Boston, and proposes to take a course in tinmith work. He is the son of M. T. Walsh of Brook street and has been in the employ of his father for a number of years in the plumbing business.

E. B. Davies goes to the Springfield Y. M. C. A. for a special automobile course.

Birthday Party

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Bertie Mears, 75 Essex street, was the scene of a very enjoyable affair last Friday evening, the occasion being a party in honor of their daughter, Florence Edna, who celebrated her sixteenth birthday.

A number of her young girl friends gathered among whom was Miss Ethel Walker, who presided at the piano. Besides Victrola selections, there were many solos while Miss Annie Kibbie with Miss Edna Mears as partner did several fancy dances to the delight of the company.

A collation was served late in the evening.

Miss Mears received many beautiful presents from her friends and relatives. Those present were Miss Ethel Walker, Florence Edna Mears, Annie Kibbie, Elizabeth McCrory, Edna Perkins, Winnifred Broughm, Jennie Valentine, Martha Mears, Hazel Broughm, Christina Perkins and Gladys Mears, Mr. John McCrory and Mr. and Mrs. Bertie Mears.

Phillips Boy brings Down Aeroplane

A former Andover student, Harold R. Buckley, of Springfield, has brought down his first aeroplane, according to newspaper despatches from the Marne front. Lieut. Buckley was a member of a party of five Americans in a fight with 12 German planes, near Fismes and in the contest Lieut. Buckley got his opponent. The Americans were protecting two French observatory planes when attacked by the Germans.

Lieut. Buckley, who was a member of the class of 1918, at Andover, and went across with the first Andover ambulance unit, later went into the air service and recently received his commission. He was on the swimming team at the Academy.

Christ Church Notes

The women of the Parish are invited to the Rectory to-day at 2.30 to sew for the local Red Cross.

The boys and their officers from the camp at Phillips Academy attended Christ church in a body last Sunday. It was inspiring to hear them sing the hymns in the service.

Local Boys Gassed

Word has been received that three Andover boys have been slightly gassed in France. They are Sergeant Joseph Daley, formerly of the Andover Press, Corporal Larkin, and Private Cole. They are members of Battery F, 102nd F. A. and have been in the fighting line for several months.

Returned Officer Entertained in Town

Captain Roy A. Daniels of Battery C, 102nd F. A. in France, has been a visitor at the home of his sister, Mrs. Frank J. Maguire, 43 Highland road, this week. Captain Daniels has been across for a year and has been recalled by the War Department at Washington, to be an instructor at Camp Meade, Md.

Captain Daniels was in the American patrol on the Mexican border before going to France, and has seen considerable service. He relates in a very entertaining manner his experiences at the front. Captain Daniels is a native of Lawrence and is enjoying a brief furlough before taking up his work as an instructor.

Rent Profiteering.

A petition from the Board of Aldermen of New York city praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent rent profiteering, was presented by Senator Wadsworth of New York in the Senate August fifth. The matter of profiteering has extended even to the matter of renting tenements, and such legislation will have a salutary effect on many grabbing landlords.

Why She Liked Brookline

A young married couple who lived near the famous golf course in Brookline were entertaining an elderly aunt from the country.

"Well, Aunt Mary, how did you spend this afternoon?" asked the hostess on the first day.

"Oh, I enjoyed myself very much," replied aunt, with a beaming smile. "I went for a walk across the fields. There seemed a great many people about and some of them shouted at me in a most eccentric manner, but I just took no notice."

"And by the way," she went on "I found such a number of curious little round, white things. I brought them home to ask you what they were."

And the dear old lady produced from her handbag about a dozen golf balls.

Wedding

ATWATER-BARTLETT

Last Saturday afternoon a wedding of considerable local interest took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Bartlett, 59 Central street, when their daughter, Eleanor Wilder, was united in marriage to David Hay Atwater, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Atwater, New York and West Hampton, L. I.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles W. Henry, rector of Christ Church, in the presence of the immediate families and a few intimate friends, the double ring service being used. The bride entered the library on the arm of her father and the wedding took place on the exact spot where her grandmother was married and in front of a bank of oak leaves and summer flowers.

The bride made a charming appearance in a gown of white satin trimmed with duchesse lace and carried a bridal bouquet of white sweet peas and lavender orchids. She was attended by her sister, Elizabeth, maid of honor, who wore a pale green organdie dress and carried pink sweet peas.

Before the ceremony B. Frank Michelson, organist at Christ Church, rendered a program of appropriate music and played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bride entered the room.

The home was prettily decorated with palms and cut flowers, dahlias, gladioli, asters and red and white phlox predominating. The dining room decorating scheme was yellow and the old homestead lent itself well to the beautiful decorations. George Millett had charge of the decorations. A reception followed and the happy couple received the congratulations and best wishes of their many friends, nearly 100 being present. A wedding lunch was served by Caterer Page of Lowell.

Both young people are well known here. The bride is a graduate of Abbot and is prominent in many social activities. Mr. Atwater is a graduate of Phillips Academy class of 1917 and played on the football team. He went across with the first Andover ambulance unit but later returned and attended Yale. He is now engaged with his father in the government coal mines at Mayberry, W. Va. After a motor wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Atwater will live at Mayberry. They received a great many beautiful wedding presents.

Observation Tour of Essex County Farms

In order to become better acquainted with farming conditions in Essex County and as a means of seeing what their fellow workers and the Farm Bureau are doing, the Advisory Board and members of the Essex County Farm Bureau, as well as interested friends are planning a tour of inspection in automobiles of some of the practical farms and farm Bureau demonstration plots in the county. The trip is planned for Wednesday, August 21, 1918, starting at the Agricultural School, Hathorne, at 10 o'clock. Each person is to arrange his own transportation, and all interested persons are invited to cover all or as much of the trip as possible. The following schedule is planned:

- 9:30 Essex Agricultural School, Hathorne.
- Visit grass plots, egg laying contest, canning plant, etc.
- 10:15 Farm of A. F. Learoyd, Hathorne.
- Market Gardener.
- 11:30 Farm and nurseries of Messrs. George C. Thurlow & Sons, West Newbury. Nursery and demonstration orchard.
- 12:15 Basket Lunch - Thurlow Farm.
- 1:15 Maudsleigh Farm, Newburyport.
- Guernsey cattle, soy beans, corn test.
- 2:00 Farm of George W. Kinney, Amesbury.
- Potatoes, hogs on pasture, and general farming.
- 3:30 Farm of L. H. Kimball, Haverhill.
- Ayershire cattle.
- 4:00 Farm of Chauncey Gleason, Haverhill.
- Ayershire Cattle.
- 4:30 Farm of J. B. Sawyer, Bradford.
- Alfalfa.
- 5:00 Farm of J. C. Poor, North Andover.
- Holstein cattle and general farming.
- 5:30 Edgewood Farm, North Andover.
- Potato plot - Maine seed vs Home grown, and general farming.

County Agricultural Agent.

Andover Visitors

Mr. Edward W. Twichell of Connecticut, and Miss Gertrude Ware of Atlanta University, Georgia, brother and niece of Mrs. Mary D. Hall, are guests at her home on Bartlett Street. Rev. R. A. Goodwin, of the Theological Seminary in its last year in Andover, 1908, and for several years pastor at Atkinson, N. H., now at Goodyear, Conn., was in town last week, calling at Mrs. E. Francis Holt's, where he boarded when a student here, and other places. Rev. Arthur H. Pearson, a Seminary graduate in 1880, visited his classmate, Rev. Sidney K. Perkins, at the Dumont Clarke House, this week. Mr. Pearson, who was a native of Haverhill, and was at one time a missionary instructor in Mexico, and afterward professor at Carlton College, Minnesota, was a graduate of Phillips in 1873, in the same class with George T. Eaton and Alfred L. Ripley. The Perkins family return to their home in Manchester, Vt., Monday.

Marriage

In Dover, N. H., Thursday, August 15, by the Rev. John A. Chapin, Frances M. Angus of this town and John E. Willis of Boston.

OBITUARIES

MRS. KATE A. ELLIOT

Mrs. Kate A. Elliot, wife of Dr. George B. Elliot died Monday at the family home 384 North Main street. She was born in Newbury, Vermont, but had lived in town for many years and was known by a large number of friends and neighbors. She leaves her husband, Dr. George B. Elliot, a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Drew and a niece, Dorothy Elliot Evans.

The funeral was held from her late home Wednesday at 2 p. m. The service was conducted by the Rev. E. M. Tasker of Tilton, N. H., with burial in Pelham, N. H. Miss Lucy Lord sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere", and "Face to Face."

The bearers were Walter Lamont, Walter Donald, Frederic Plummer, and William Lamont.

MRS. MARTHA RUSSELL

Very early Thursday morning Mrs. Martha Russell, one of the oldest residents of West Andover passed peacefully into her eternal rest. Mrs. Russell was born in Frye Village, July 9th, 1828, the only child of Osgood and Martha Luscomb Barnard. When only twelve years old her parents moved into the house in West Parish Center where she has lived ever since and where she died.

During her whole life Mrs. Russell was quiet, dignified and a blessing in her family, the church and the Parish. She united with the West Church when eighteen years old during the pastorate of Rev. Samuel Jackson, the first pastor of the West church, and for thirty-five years sang in the choir where for many years her husband the late George Russell was leader. She was a life member of the Seaman's Friend Society and delighted to tell of the socials as they were held at the homes of the members when she was a child. Her faculties were keen almost to the last, and among the events of her early life she loved to tell of the Gilmore Peace Jubilee held in Mechanic's Building in Boston, in 1872 when a chorus of twenty thousand people took part, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell were among the singers and Mrs. Kelsey was pianist for the Andover singers. She was very enthusiastic in telling of the ringing of the church bells, and other details at the ending of the Civil War.

Mrs. Russell was ninety years old July 9th and although confined to her room, keenly enjoyed the callers and the gifts and cards she received from those who were unable to call. Her whole life in her family and Parish from a child up was that of a thorough Christian person. Seldom sick, her place at the church services was seldom vacant, and in all Church work she did her part well. She has been sick since last winter, but all that loving care could do to alleviate her pain was done by her daughters and careful nursing of her daughter, Miss Marion Abbott.

She leaves two daughters Mrs. Ella Kelsey, of Toledo, Ohio, and Mrs. Hattie L. Abbott with whom she lived and one son, George O. of Wakefield. Her husband died many years ago being only forty-two years old at the time of his death. She leaves six grandchildren. George Kelsey of Brooklyn, N. Y., Edward and Louise Kelsey of Toledo, Ohio, Marion Abbott of the Parish, Harold Abbott of Brunswick, Georgia and Ruth Abbott in Washington. Funeral services will be held in the West Church, Saturday at 2 p. m., and burial will be in the family lot in the West Parish Cemetery.

"She has fought a good fight, she has finished her course, she has kept the faith."

MARY DALY

Mary Daly, the infant child of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Daly of North Main street, died Tuesday morning. The funeral was held Thursday at 2 p. m., with interment in Calvary Cemetery, Boston. The body was taken to Boston by undertakers Conlon and Ryan.

MRS. JOHN FRAIZE

Mrs. Frances M. Fraize, wife of John Fraize, died at her home 17 Barnard street, Monday, after a long illness. Mrs. Fraize was born in Newfoundland, forty-two years ago and is survived by her husband and a daughter Mary. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at 2 p. m. and the service was conducted by Rev. Frank R. Shipman, with burial in Spring Grove Cemetery.

In Memoriam

ADA KATHLEEN CAMPBELL

A wave of genuine sympathy and sorrow passed over the whole community on Monday, July 22nd, when it became known that Ada Kathleen, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Campbell of Burlington, had passed away at the tender age of six years and one month. During her brief illness all that loving hearts and hands could do was done to restore her to health but God saw it fit to call the loved one he had entrusted to their care. Kathleen was a very bright and attractive child loved by all who knew her; she will be greatly missed in her home and by her little playmates with whom she was a general favorite. The funeral which was very largely attended was conducted by the Rector, Rev. C. W. Neish at St. Stephen's Church where interment was made. Most fitting was his text at the funeral service: Lo, children are an heritage of the Lord, Ps. 127, 3. The floral tributes from relatives and friends were very beautiful. She leaves beside her sorrowing father and mother one sister Beatrice W. to whom is extended the sincerest sympathy of their many friends in this hour of sad bereavement.

Mrs. James A. Campbell, mother of the deceased, is a daughter of George Piddington School street.

American McAll Association

Those who were formerly members of the Andover Auxiliary to the McAll Mission (and others we hope) will be interested in the following letter. The work of the mission has been for thirty five years among the people living in the now, war devastated regions of France, and can work most effectively in helping to relieve the greatly increased and constantly increasing needs among all classes of people.

My dear Miss Carter:

The French High Commissioner has interceded for us with the War Trade Board, and we have been granted a three months license to send second hand wool clothing to France. From June 24th to September 24th Hartford Depot will receive your donations, and will pack and ship them according to orders.

Now is the time to obtain all the warm wool garments for men, women, boys and girls, that you can find.

France will suffer more than ever this winter.

We cannot begin to realize what that suffering must be -

You must help - I must help - During these lovely summer days let us make this our privilege and duty - Let us be friends of France not only in thought and word but in action as "faith without works is dead"

Yours very truly,

Chairman War Relief Committee—
Hope H. Colgate.

Local Man heads Important Work

Harvey W. Page of Ballardvale Road, formerly special expert at the Tye Rubber Co., has been engaged to take charge of Lord Cordingley's interests at Tampico, Mexico. The business of this firm is to secure large quantities of oil for the Allied Fleet, from the extensive Mexican oil wells at Tampico.

Mr. Page is a member of Blue Room Club of Engineers, and has been in charge of government works at Camp Devens and still later had charge of special work for the Shipping Board. Mr. Page is well qualified for his present important work on account of his expert training.

DELIVERIES

W. B. Endicott, Food Administrator, has issued the following letter to the stores concerning deliveries:

Grocers and provision dealers are urged to so arrange their business that teams do not make any unnecessary trips over any one route or to any one section of the city, and that not more than one delivery a day be made to any one family.

Householders are requested not to place orders with their grocer or provision dealer oftener than once a day, and so far as possible to place them the day before delivery is desired.

There is an overburden of deliveries at present on Fridays and Saturdays, and householders can greatly assist in relieving this by having all their non-perishable supplies delivered early in the week.

Householders should not expect more than one delivery a day, and they will perform a patriotic service by patronizing dealers who make no special deliveries.

Reconstruction of Crippled Soldiers

The American Red Cross is interesting itself not only in the men in the field, at home and abroad, but is very properly interested in the future of those who may come back from the front, wounded, crippled for life, possibly to become a charge on those who might help them to become independent of help. The following statement has just been issued by Douglas C. McMurtree, Director of the Red Cross Institute for Crippled and Disabled Men:

"We must count on the return from the front of thousands of crippled soldiers. We must plan to give them the best possible chance for the future. The Government will provide the best of surgical care and special training for self-support. But whether this really puts the disabled man back on his feet in the community depends on whether the attitude of the public operates as a help or hindrance.

"The American Red Cross desires to enlist the assistance of the clergy of the United States—in their joint roles of personal advisers and leaders of community opinion—in promoting sound doctrine on these four points:

"1. To convince the public that the cripple is not helpless, but is capable of being restored to complete independence if trained and placed in the right line of work.

"2. That it is no kindness to encourage the cripple to idleness; that on the contrary every influence should be brought to bear to have him accept training and prepare for useful employment.

"3. That the duty of the community is intelligently to employ him, rather than to expend equivalent energy in social entertainment or in the expression of unwise sympathy which tends more to demoralize than to build up character.

"4. To make known to the public in general, and to the families of soldiers in particular, the remarkable results in the reconstruction of crippled men being attained by modern methods of medical and social science.

The Situation in Austria

The situation in Austria is bad. At a convention of Czechoslovak, Polish and Jugoslav journalists, in Prague, Dr. Antonin Hajn gave a description of the methods by which Austria, through the Imperial Correspondence Bureau not only censors news but uses the press to mislead its own people. He said that the business of gathering news and disseminating it by telegraph was in Austria subject to a license, and that the state had granted only one license, namely to itself. The Vienna Correspondence Bureau is as much a state monopoly as the sale of tobacco. That fact in itself indicates its real character and value. It enables the government to govern the public opinion within the state, and exert an influence on foreign opinion. It twists news, emasculates it, and even suppresses what is does not like but it has exceeded all former records during this war. The bureau is a weapon of war by means of which the government creates an artificial mist of words and conceals by it the real condition of the Empire, both before the world and before its peoples. It is nothing but one of the means of the internal offensive of the German-Magyar system against the aspirations for freedom of the oppressed nations of the monarchy.

WAR BULLETINS

Explosive factories at Rombach were attacked by a British bombing squadron. Fifteen hostile airplanes were destroyed and seven driven down out of control. Two British machines failed to return.

While the allies' heaviest guns pound the German military centers far in the rear, Rupprecht's reply by infantry, artillery and air is very feeble so far. Some counter attacks were attempted, but they were easily repulsed.

British and French armies under command of Field Marshal Haig launched a new offensive against the Germans in the Somme salient on a wide front from the Ancre river to the region of Montdidier, reaching a depth of seven miles in places. The Germans were taken completely by surprise and are in full flight, losing over 10,000 prisoners.

Striking advances have been made by the allies on five sectors—two on the Soissons-Rheims battlefield and three on the front farther north.

In a rainstorm Tuesday night French and American troops crossed the Vesle river on a five mile front from Flumes to west of Bazoches. Some used bridges left by the Germans and others plunged through water and mud up to their necks.

The British drove forward on a five mile front between the Lawe and Clarence rivers to a depth of nearly two-thirds of a mile. The advance was on the southern side of the Lys salient, which had just been the scene of one of the German strategic retreats.

WASHINGTON

Labor shortage in and near Philadelphia leads to call upon Washington for 13,000 men.

Friends and foes of suffrage in the senate roundly denounced the "picket squad" for its demonstration near the White House, which resulted in the arrest of 48 women.

The House Ways and Means Committee decides to reduce the taxes they had agreed to on automobiles and tobacco. In the former case the basis was changed to indicate horsepower, and in the latter the decision to quadruple the levy was revised so that it will only be doubled.

Production of winter wheat this year was announced by the Department of Agriculture in its preliminary estimate at 556,000,000 bushels. Spring wheat was forecast at 322,000,000 bushels, from July conditions. Production of all wheat was estimated at 878,000,000 bushels.

The Federal Food Board requested that no sugar be used in the making of home-made candles.

General March, urging Congress to speed action on the new man power bill, says it is intended to put 5,000,000 men under arms as fast as they can be drafted and send such an army to France as will bring the war to a speedy close.

An income tax of $24,000 upon the salary of the President and taxes upon the salaries of supreme court justices and state officers is tentatively decided upon by the Ways and Means Committee.

Secretary McAdoo announced in Chicago that the rate of the next Liberty Loan will be 4 1/2 per cent.

GENERAL

Ebbets field, home of the Brooklyn National League Club, will be closed for the duration of the war after the game with Philadelphia and converted into a storage warehouse. The action is taken to indicate that the officers of the Brooklyn Club do not contemplate a continuation of big league baseball in 1919.

The food administration announced that exports of beef for June were 12,173,000 pounds, of which 85 per cent. went to Britain, France and Belgium.

Provisions of the $8,000,000,000 revenue bill were reviewed by the House Ways and Means Committee. No changes were made in the rates agreed upon.

Railroads were instructed to effect prompt transportation of leather and hides because of the heavy government demands.

Secretary Baker declared news gathering to be an indispensable industry while discussing draft regulations.

Hogs at the yards in Chicago sold for a new record price of $20.05. The former record price was $20, paid last August.

Three highwaymen held up the South Side State Bank of Indianapolis and after attacking the president and cashier escaped with $10,000.

YOUR SON'S LIFE OR A NEW SUIT

What It Means If 105,000,000 People Refuse to Economize on Clothing

NATION HURT IN MANY WAYS

One of Numerous Cases in Point Vividly Illustrates the Vital Necessity of "Saving to Save the Country" in War Time.

By PAUL M. WARBURG, Vice Governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

I am one of one hundred and five million of inhabitants of the United States; my duties are the same as those of every other true American, and those of every other true American are the same as mine. Whatever I contribute to the cause of the country, I may expect to see done—each in his own way—by 105,000,000 people.

Let us suppose for the purpose of illustration that I decide that I shall effect a saving on clothes. I might select boots, automobiles, umbrellas, or any other article for which I regularly spend my money, as I have no desire to single out any one commodity, but clothes lend themselves to my thought, so I name them. If I make up my mind, then, at this juncture that to wear old clothes is more respectable than to be seen in new ones; if I decide to buy one new suit of clothes less than I usually purchase each year, and if I figure that suit to cost no more than $10—the country as a whole, should we all pull together and act on the same lines, would save thereby over one-billion dollars. It is true that in dealing with our 105,000,000 population we include children and many poor people that could not save ten dollars each because they never spend more for clothes than they absolutely must. But on the other hand $10 is a much smaller amount than the average man or woman spends for a new suit of clothes. The assumption that billion dollars could easily be saved on clothes may, therefore, be accepted as conservative.

The first thought that occurs to us in this connection is, that by this saving in clothes over one billion dollars would be freed to be invested in Liberty loan bonds. That is the first important and most obvious result. But there are other economic results involved in this saving that are of far greater importance than the mere saving of money.

Economic Results Are Vast.

Let us consider first what one billion dollars' worth of clothes means. Suppose they were half-wool and half-cotton and that the value of the raw material constituted only 50 per cent. of the price paid by the ultimate consumer, that would, at the present price of 60 cents per pound for wool and 30 cents per pound for cotton respectively, represent 208,334 tons of wool and 416,667 tons of cotton. Can you imagine how much freight space would be required on water and on land, in moving this mass of raw material? Do you realize that if these bales were put into freight cars, assuming a loading capacity of 16 tons per car for wool and 13 tons per car for cotton, this would represent 13,021 box cars loaded with wool and 32,056 box cars loaded with cotton? Assuming 75 cars per train, there would be about 600 trains; the total length of these trains would be approximately 314 miles, and these trains, hauled by 600 engines, when standing in line would approximately cover the distance from Baltimore to Pittsburgh? Can you imagine the amount of coal consumed in first transporting and then weaving this raw material into cloth? Can you imagine the number of hands employed in these processes? And then consider that more coal, more labor and more transportation are required in distributing the cloth and again more labor and more material in converting it into clothes, and again more labor and transportation in retailing the finished product to the final consumer.

Let us be mindful that all the time these processes are being carried on, Uncle Sam is short of the men necessary to dispatch his war work, and furthermore that shortage of coal and the clogging of the wheels of transportation have stopped his progress at most critical moments and in the present emergency continue to remain a constant menace to the country.

May Cost Your Son's Life.

My new suit of clothes means, therefore, delay for our military operations; delay in transporting and equipping men, and in sending to them, and to our allies, the supplies they need; means increased losses and a longer duration of the war. My new suit of clothes may cost, therefore, the life of my son.

The supply of goods, of labor and of transportation is limited. It is a matter of common agreement that this limited supply is not sufficient freely to satisfy all wants and that unrestricted attempts on the part of each individual to satisfy his own requirements may lead to a wild scramble and destructive competition with the government, resulting in fatal delay and endless increase in prices.

The loaf of bread available for ourselves and for our allies is not large enough to "go around" if we all want to eat more than is absolutely necessary for our maintenance. It is everybody's duty, therefore, at this time, to "tighten his belt" and to make a genuine effort to live on as thin a slice of the loaf as he can. Unless that be done we must buy additional food in neutral countries, thereby using tonnage that should be kept available for our military operations and increasing our difficulties in adjusting our trade balances with neutral countries.

Hurts Uncle Sam in Many Ways.

To return to our story of the suit of clothes: During last year the United States had to import 421,000,000 pounds of wool representing a value of about $172,000,000. About half of this came from Argentina. Our suits of clothes called for a substantial portion of this wool and therefore to that extent robbed Uncle Sam of the use of his ships. Moreover, our factories being busy in producing the things required for the prosecution of the war and our home consumption still proceeding at almost top speed, the quantity of goods available for shipment to Argentina in payment for the wool (or for that matter to Chile for nitrates, to Peru for copper, and so on), is insufficient. As a consequence the United States had to pay for more goods in South America than South America has had to pay for goods bought in the United States, thereby causing a decline of dollar exchange in these neutral countries. This shrinkage in the price of the dollar means that it has lost a corresponding part of its purchasing power in neutral countries. The scarcity of goods available for our export trade has thus become a serious obstacle in our way in trying to secure at reasonable prices or in adequate quantities some of the things that we absolutely require from foreign countries.

My suit of clothes has hurt Uncle Sam, therefore, in several ways: I have consumed more wool than necessary and thereby forced the United States to import a correspondingly large quantity of this article; I have consumed more cotton goods than necessary and to that extent have deprived Uncle Sam of the means with which to pay for the minimum of wool which we may have to import.

Clothing But One of Many.

I have used the illustration of a new suit of clothes; it would be easy, though somewhat tedious, to show that we have been dealing only with one case in point. The country is short at this time of hides and skins and has to import large quantities from neutral countries because we are extravagant in our individual purchases of shoes. Similarly, though we are the largest producers of copper, we are forced to import copper from Peru because our civilian population has not begun sufficiently to curtail its use. In like manner we might ask ourselves if it at all excusable that at this time we still manufacture such articles as silk stockings, when every thread of silk must be imported, while we could use our own cotton?

It is impossible and unnecessary to enumerate the many articles that are in a similar position. Many billions of dollars can easily be saved when once we are capable of realizing the cumulative effect of individual "saving;" take the word "saving" in its larger meaning, as involving not only money, but also goods and services. If every individual could be made to see with his own eyes that neglect of saving of this sort means decreased war efficiency, a propaganda of the war, and a larger number of casualties; if every one who has a son or dear relative on the fighting lines across the water could be made to feel that millions of small savings directly affect his boy—there would be no doubt that we could secure the most conscientious and enthusiastic co-operation of all the people. Thus far—we must say with regret—of 105,000,000 people, 100,000,000 do not see the connection between the suit of clothes and the life of the boy.

Germany's Enforced Economy.

Germany's military success is largely predicated upon her ability to center the entire national effort upon the business of war. It is safe to say that she never would have been able to bear the burdens of the fight as well as she has during these four long years had it not been for the enforced savings in material, money and men brought about through the British blockade. If it had not been for the stern necessities created by that blockade the German people would not have been willing to submit to famine rations as to food, clothes, shoes and other similar articles. Industries catering to the appetites and extravagances of the masses would have kept men and material from the government instead of making everything available for the war work of the government, and financially she would have exhausted herself by buying things abroad that she could go without or for which she had to strain her ingenuity in finding or creating substitutes.

It is difficult to bring about drastic economy without the compulsion exercised by hard necessity. For us the problem is whether or not, of our own free will, we shall be able to establish our own voluntary blockade against waste and extravagance. It is a problem whose solution requires the greatest intelligence and the greatest degree of unselfish patriotism. It is a problem that will put the spirit of our people to the severest test.

The government is not devoid of means of promoting economy. The war industries board, the food and fuel administrations, the capital issues committee, the department of labor and department of agriculture all move in the same direction of increasing necessary production and decreasing unnecessary consumption.

Full success, however, may be counted upon only if the whole-hearted co-operation of every citizen of the United States can be enlisted.

Let's save this 15%

THE Government is asking the help of employers and workmen to do away with the unnecessary "turn-over" of labor in essential war industries. If this can be done it will add 15% to the productivity of industry.

Thus workers are assured of being sent to the right jobs at the right time. Employers get help in hiring men as they need them.

PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT

"Industry plays an essential and honorable role in this great struggle as do our military armaments. We all recognize the truth of this, but we must also see its necessary implications—namely, that industry, doing a vital task for the nation, must receive the support and assistance of the nation."

***

"Therefore, I solemnly urge all employers engaged in war work to refrain after August 1st, 1918, from recruiting unskilled labor in any manner except through this central agency. [U. S. Employment Service.] I urge labor to respond as loyally as heretofore to any calls issued by this agency for voluntary enlistment in essential industry. And I ask them both alike to remember that no sacrifice will have been in vain, if we are able to prove beyond all question that the highest and best form of efficiency is the spontaneous co-operation of a free people."

WOODROW WILSON.

The U. S. Employment Service has been organized as a part of the Department of Labor to help employers find the right men, and to help men find the right jobs in all war work. This Service has 500 branch offices covering the United States, and 20,000 U. S. Public Reserve Enrollment Agents.

It has definite knowledge of manufacturing and labor conditions all over the country. Employers are asked to use this service when they need men, and workers are asked to consult it when they need employment, or if they feel a change in employment is necessary.

facilities were provided, and there was no loss of time or money to workers or employer.

The use of the U. S. Employment Service by both employers and workers is a patriotic service and duty to the government.

DEMONSTRATION CAR

It is occasionally reported that some persons are feeding to poultry or live stock the wheat flour substitutes which they are obliged to buy with wheat flour, or are simply storing them up and not using them for human consumption. Any one suspecting such a case should immediately report it to the County Food Administrator.

In Massachusetts the supply of white flour is not yet at all abundant. Householders are requested to use no white flour, and instead to turn to graham and whole wheat flour, with which we are overstocked in this State.

Housewives are required to buy substitutes along with graham flour, but less than with white. The rule is three pounds of substitutes with five pounds of graham. Many people find that a small amount of graham in a mixed bread improves the flavor; and the price of graham flour is somewhat lower than white flour.

Important Summer Meeting

The State Board of Agriculture will hold their annual summer meeting at the Essex County Agricultural School on Friday, August 30. It is the purpose of this meeting to emphasize the possibilities of local farm production and resourcefulness. With this in view the Secretary has arranged a program approximately as follows:

Professor S. B. Haskell of Baltimore, (formerly of the Massachusetts Agricultural College) will discuss Home Grown Manures. Professor H. F. Thompson, Director Market Garden Field Station, will discuss Home Grown Seeds. Mr. H. D. Daniels, a leading Connecticut dairyman, will discuss Home Grown Feeds.

This is a program which should interest all farmers. Please reserve this date. Extend the invitation and plan to come.

FRED A. SMITH, Director.

Registration Notice

Natural History Society

As the proper officials for planning and announcing the August meeting of the Natural History Society are all off on a vacation, and will not return until too late for Friday's Townsman, let me take it upon myself to send notice of the next meeting at Miss Ella H. Foster's Salem street, who opens house and grounds for a basket picnic, such as we enjoyed together at Miss Alice Gray's last month. The Trenches at Sunset, the traditions of the old Salem street houses with some war flavor, will be on the programme. The time is Wednesday afternoon, August 21 at 4.30, at 49 Salem street.

Unofficially, C. H. A.

Davis &amp; Furber Wins

Davis & Furber turned the tables on the Trench team, Saturday afternoon on the local playstead and came through with a 5-4 victory. This game puts the teams on an even footing as Trench won the last tilt between the two teams. Davis & Furber secured an early lead and held it until the seventh when Trench succeeded in tying the score. Both teams displayed a more finished article of ball than they did at their game Tuesday evening. Biene of Trench was up to his usual form and contributed three hits out of five trips to the plate, one of them being a three-bagger. Payne also did well at the bat.

The visitors started off in the first inning and tallied three runs before Trench knew what had happened. Murphy led off and got life on McNally's error. Heggarty hit a foul fly to Bowman.

Holland walked Garneau and Murphy took second. Donnelly hit a grounder to Biene who fumbled but recovered it in time to get Garneau at second. Murphy had, however, crossed the plate. Donnelly stole second and tallied a minute later on Morrissey's double. Burke was safe on Biene's error and Morrissey scored. Burke was left on base when Sullivan struck out. Three runs. One hit.

Trench got her first run in the second. Payne led off with a two bagger and scored on Garneau's error. McNally was unable to connect. Morrissey threw Lynch out at first and Biene was retired on strikes. One run. One hit.

Trench made a desperate effort to overcome Davis & Furber's lead in the fourth inning. Temple walked. Payne sent him to third on his own single. In an attempt to catch Payne stealing Heggarty threw to Schofield but the latter let the ball get through him and Temple scored, Payne taking third. McNally hit to left and Payne tallied. Lynch sacrificed McNally to second. Biene got a fielder's choice when Morrissey played to third and caught McNally. Two runs. Two hits.

The winning run was made in the eighth. Morrissey and Burke hit pop flies to Lynch. Sullivan singled and stole second. Dolan's throw went into center field. Temple recovered it and threw to McNally at third but McNally was unable to hang on to the ball and Sullivan brought the visitor's count up to five. Walsh followed with a hit but Schofield fanned. One run. Two hits.

Schedule of Games Arranged

Manager Collins of the Tyer Rubber Co., has arranged many games and the schedule will extend far into September. He expects to play an Industrial league team, a twilight game this week, but all the other games will be for Saturday afternoons.

Saturday So. Lawrence A. C. is scheduled for the local playstead and again on August 24. In case So. Lawrence fails to get a team together for Saturday Manager Collins will take on the Davis & Furber team in the rubber game of the series.

A three game series with the All-Star team of the Industrial league will also be arranged. Two more games will be played with the Converse Rubber of Malden and a series with the Fairmounts of Lawrence.

Ballardvale is also on the schedule for a three game series beginning August 31. The Tyer team will be strengthened for these games, and it is hoped the public will give the Tyer team better support financially.

They Both Set the Family Clock Ahead

Several amusing incidents were related recently in connection with the change of time. One of the best happened in the house of a well-known citizen. Upon retiring Saturday evening the good wife, thinking that the head of the family would be as forgetful as his own, set the hands ahead an hour. The husband, taking it for granted that his beloved companion would depend upon him to perform such a very important service, subsequently set the hands ahead another hour.

Denouement—The worthy couple arrived at the church door an hour before the time for morning service to begin, and much were they mystified over the locked church door and the general appearance of desertion about the edifice.

Mutual explanations disclosed the reason why.
